THE PROGRAM OF THE MATHAY ADMINISTRATION 1995-1998

With a fresh mandate accorded by the people of Quezon City on May 8, 1995 and with the significant achievements over the past three-year term to build on, the Mathay administration looks forward to the next three years of challenges, opportunities and achievements for the benefit of some 2 million constituents of this true Capital City of the country. Mayor Ismael A. Mathay recognizes that the problems will continue to be formidable as the population grows and as the need to achieve progress becomes more pressing. Nevertheless, the Mayor looks forward to continuing strong support from the people as he pushes through his program for the next three years.

The major thrust of this Program includes:

* Housing and resettlement - Given large urban poor (and particularly squattter sector) housing and resettlement will be the top priority concern of the Mathay Administration. Squatting, of course, is a national problem as well as in collaboration and support of the national government, this priority will be more vigorously implemented. The program includes site acquisition and housing development not only for the urban poor (with socialized housing) but those deserving city residents such as government employees, teachers, among others.

A complementary program to housing will be livelihood development and employment generation . This can be done through household and community-based industries, small-scale industries, with skills training provided through the Quezon City Polytechnic. Financing programs will be arranged for this hopefully, with assistance from the National Government.

* Improved delivery of basic services - While expanding coverage and reach of the basic services, for the health and medical, social welfare, relief and assistance, with priority beneficiaries such as the youth and elderly; and provision of utilities such as power and water - the efforts will be vigorously pursued by decentralizing delivery programs at the District Level.

a. Water Source Development and Distribution. The impending water-shortage crisis will not spare the City with its large population to be affected, particularly among the urban poor. Thus, projects in this regard will continue and will be expanded - to include artesian wells, deep wells and community water systems. The City will propose the institution of privatized water distribution in cooperation with the MWSS.

In the meantime, the city will continue to deliver water to unprovided areas through water tankers which the City Government has mobilized.

b. Depressed Area Electrification Program will continue and be accelerated to reach many more communities.

* Environment Improvement - There is an expectation that the next crisis will be garbage disposal as the solid wastes accumulate geometrically and grows with population growth , commercial and industrial development. The Payatas Dumpsite will be permanently closed starting this year and alternative disposal systems will have to be in place-including new landfills and a waste to energy facility, while community based waste disposal and recycling will be implemented. Cleaning and greening will be put in high gear and anti-smoke belching campaign will continue to be pursued.

* Business Development - To provide for the needs of an increasing population - particularly livelihood and employment and basic services, as well as to accelerate economic growth of the City (a long term imperative for expanding the revenue base), the City will push this initiative which will include, among others the development of business centers (such as the North Triangle), economic and commercial zones in Commonwealth Avenue and Payatas and other areas.

For the purpose of reformulation of land use and zoning regulations will be pushed through.

A feature of this program is the attainment of a viable business-government relations which among others will include improved services to the business sector, investments promotion and improvement in revenue collection.

* Educational Development - Updrading public education will continue to be a priority of the Mayor and the City Government. This will include more school building construction to reduce classroom size to 55 students, upgrading of the faculty competences while enhancing their financial incentives, site development for existing and new schools to accomodate increased enrolment, expanded provision of utilities, facilities and equipment for the schools. Soon, the City will put up a Center for instructional and Learning Technology - to develop competences of teachers in adopting the latest in instructional technology.

* Infrastructure Development - School building and road construction have been the major thrust of the infrastructure program of the first three years. Over the next three years, major infrastructure development project are contemplated, to include among others:

a. Light Rail or Monorail Transit on a route of 34 kilometers looping around the entire City.

b. A waste to energy project which will dispose of garbage while generating electricity for the city use to power small industrial firms planned particularly in the Payatas area.

c. The Payatas Development Program, as directed by President Fidel V. Ramos, himself, includes school buildings, major road networks connecting Quezon City (through Payatas) and San Mateo - Marikina, housing development and as contemplated a waste-to-energy plant. This further includes development of economic-commercial zones in the populated area of Commonwealth Avenue.

The above are major infrastructural investments which will be implemented through the Build-Operate-Transfer Schemes (or Build-Operate-and Own, as an alternative) thus saving the city itself of major investment outlays as well as from the task of managing these infrastructures.

* Peace and Order - This is a continuing priority and will include improvement of police administration and operations, beefing up uniformed police personnel and support or auxiliary personnel, improved traffic enforcement, improved crime monitoring, establishment of a quick response operation centers, activation of peace and order councils, strengthening collaboration with Non-Government organizations.

* Continuing Improvement in Government Administrative Operations This includes streamlining of operations, enhancing efficiency of public assistance services, improving fiscal position of the City to support expanded programs and services, upgrade personnel capabilities, attitudes and values, and improved mechanism for public communications and information.

Three years is a short-term horizon to implement all these programs. However, an overwhelming mandate, and expected continuing support of the public, will provide new energies and initiatives in pushing these programs. It has been demonstrated over the past three years that the achievements as indicated are indeed in the improvement of the welfare and quality of life of the people of Quezon City. They themselves have said so. So there is some optimism about the success of the Mathay Administration in achieving its objectives over the next three years.

MAYOR ISMAEL A. MATHAY, JR.
A PORTRAIT

A man for whom public service is more than just a family tradition; but an abiding personal commitment to help his fellowmen.

A compleat politician who takes the mandate of his people as a mission to achieve and deliver the greatest good to the greatest number.

An effective administrator whose hands-on management style serves as a model for his subordinates, and whose concern for the enhancement of human capital has become the guiding criterion in his dealing with and recognition of the worth of his fellow workers.

A quintessential leader who inspires fellow workers to productive heights, who energizers his constituents to fruitful collaboration and cooperation and who moves his peers to supportive alliances and working relationships.

Above all, a devoted family man who could deeply grieve the utter loss of a beloved grandchild. A human being who sees the worth of street children, opening wide the future for them with his personal program of care, while extending to the elderly the trusting hand of comfort and hope for the future.

A true son of the Metropolis that he wants to transform and make into a much better place to live and work in.

A trustee of his Beloved City that he wants to remake into one his people can deserve and be proud of; a sensitive father to his constituents as they come to have their grievances redressed.

He sees the problems of his city as daunting but yet a challenge to contend with in order to keep faith with the mandate of his people. He succeeds and will keep on as his destined place is to be the greatest Mayor of this Beloved City, the Loving Father to his People.

In his father's footsteps.... ....

Ismael Mathay, Sr., the father of the man, was considered as an outstanding public servant, having spent a good number of years in government service. He literally rose from the ranks where he was initially employed as a messenger in the Office of the Insular Auditor, the predecessor office of the General Auditing Office, which was later known as the Commission on Audit. Eventually, he was appointed as Budget Commissioner, Finance Secretary, the last Auditor General and the first Chairman of the Commission on Audit. With his impeccable record in the service he served as an ideal and inspiration to Mayor Mathay who even in his childhood years sought to emulate his father's achievements.

SELECTED QUOTATIONS FROM SPEECHES OF THE MAYOR, ISMAEL A. MATHAY, JR.

The challenge is before us. It is a collective challenge for a government that is effective, efficient and yet humane and congenial. We need toformulate policies that are responsive to the people's expectations in the short-run yet set the direction for sustained and strategic development for the city that will further enhance the benefits in the long-run. We need to carry out executive actions that are clearly productive of results of beneficial impactst to the constituents. And we need to define for our people alternatives and opportunities that will enable them to help themselves be more productive, self-reliant and committed as citizens who will support and work for the city that they deserve.

State of the City Address, July 23, 1992

Above all, we need sustained popular support of our people. But the same can only gained only if the public knows we are committed to work in their behalf, with integrity, efficiency and honesty. And in the long run we produce results and deliver on our commitment to achieve the greatest good to the greatest number.

State of the City Address, September 5, 1995

Today, we are carrying on a contemporary revolution - against poverty and degradation, as we pursue the realization of the dream of our Founding Father, Manuel Luis Quezon to make our City an urban community of peace, prosperity, and contentment. This is, of course, a daunting challenge as more than fifty per cent of our people are laboring to provide themselves the minimum of basic provisin for food, shelter and services. This is a heavy responsibility for those of us here in the City Government as we try tomeet these needs of our people, hopefully, with the cooperative support of everyone. The task of achieving this vision for our City must be a common venture between our people and those of us in the City Government.

GREETINGS

There is not a single day in my long professional association with the good mayor that he has wavered from his original commitment to serve this city the best way he can.

For it is not everyday that we encounter a man gifted with the innate ability to discern the good in anyone, enabling him to fairly and squarely deal with any man or woman, no matter his/her station in life or persuasion.

These are the hallmarks of a true leader anyone would gladly follow and look up to for directions in all undertakings intended for the good of all.

Our prayers and sincerest congratulations.

Happy Birthday, Sir!
