QUEZON CITY Rep. Patrick Michael Vargas calls on the private sector to participate in enterprise-based education and training (EBET) to address job mismatch and unemployment
"Jobs and livelihood remain as top concerns of Filipinos. As more employment opportunities await our labor force with the growing demand of various industries, we have to be ready with qualified human resources in the field of critical and in-demand technical skills," Vargas said.
He filed the EBET bill which aims to promote equal employment opportunities for all by upgrading skills and competencies of Filipino workers through specialized training that will build higherlevel competencies. The law was signed by President Marcos in November last year.
