QC councilors push book dissemination

By CHITO A. CHAVEZ

Two Quezon City councilors proposed the "Book Dissemination Ordinance" that requires publishers of books in the city to furnish the city's public library with at least five copies of all printed books for free.

Councilors Julienne Alyson Rae Medulla and Alexis Herrera of the city's second and first districts respectively authors of the proposal said that books are the cheapest and most effective tools for imparting information, achieving educational growth and recording, preserving and disseminating the nation's cultural heritage.

The proposed ordinance is meant to make these books available to the public through the city libraries and public elementary and high school while encouraging local book publishers to disseminate books for free by granting them tax credits based on the value of the books actually donated.

Within a 30-day period from the date of any printed book is first delivered out of the press, the publisher whether private, government-owned, individual or judicial person will furnish the aforementioned libraries free of charge.

Upon receiving the book donation, the chief city librarian concerned will have to issue an acknowledgement receipt to the publisher or the representative concern for record purposes.

Under section 6 of the proposed ordinance, Herrera said that the city librarian has the power to use, allocate or distribute in the manner he deems fit in the interest of educational or cultural advancement, scholarship or research the materials on legal deposit at the city library.

Herrera noted that under section 3 of the proposal the city librarian shall keep the record of all materials received containing the particulars like the title of the book, the language in which the book is written, name of author, translator or editor of the book, subject matter and other pertinent information on the books supplied by the publisher.

At the end of each quarter, Herrera said that the records kept by the city librarian shall be uploaded at the website of the Quezon City government, counted from the beginning of each calendar year or not less than one month after the end of such quarter.

Any person who violates any provision of the ordinance shall be subjected to a fine of not less than ₱2, 000 but not more than ₱5, 000 depending on the discretion of the court with subsequent violations gaining a fine not exceeding ₱5, 000 and suspension of business permit.
