Formerly known as the Task Force Sikap Buhay, it was transformed into the Sikap Buhay Cooperatives Center (SBCC) with the promulgation of City Council Ordinance SP-1607 S-2005. The Center implements the city government's entrepreneurship program and functions as the city's Cooperatives Development Office.

With funds provided by its seven (7) conduit cooperatives, the Center has assisted more than 25,000 micro-entrepreneurs since 2002 to access capital loans, develop their entrepreneurial capabilities and promote entrepreneurship mindset and values. Since the middle of 2006, it started to play a key role in coordinating with and assisting various local cooperatives. It published a directory of all currently CDA-registered city-based cooperatives in 2007.

SBCC carries out its goals through three major program strategies, namely: Facilitation of Access to Capital Loans and continually finding ways to increase sources of capital loans for micro-small and medium enterprises; Entrepreneurship Training Services providing entrepreneurship and leadership skills training and inculcating the entrepreneurial spirit; and Support services and close coordination with city-based cooperatives and the Cooperative Development Authority (CDA).
