

Quezon City provides more rooms for public school students

IN line with the Quezon City's government goal to cut classroom shortage in the city, Mayor Herbert Bautista recently inaugurated a four-story school building at Manuel A. Roxas High School (MARHS) in Barangay Paligsahan.

The P71.8-million building has 12 classrooms that will be used by over 1,500 students in June. MARHS now has a total of 42 classrooms.

According to Mayor Bautista, highly-urbanized cities like QC have the biggest problem in terms of classroom shortage.

Before Mayor Bautista's term as chief executive ends, five more school buildings will be inaugurated in the city.

Under the Bautista administration, the city government has spent over P3 billion for the construction of additional buildings and P743 million for the maintenance of existing structures.

The city government was able to cut classroom shortage from 3,000 to 1,000.
