THE QUEZON City government urged taxpayers and business owners to tap the available electronic service systems for convenience and minimize health risks amid the coronavirus pandemic. “We urge our citizens to use our QC E-services to transact with the city. This way, they are saved from the hassle of physically going to the city hall and from the possible risk of being exposed to the coronavirus disease,” Mayor Maria Josefina “Joy” G. Belmonte said in a statement. The system may be used for real estate taxes and business permit application and renewal. “We have recently created an Online Payment Group dedicated to respond to all emails sent to us. Be it inquiries or proof of payment,” City Treasurer Edgar T. Villanueva said.
